Area Teens Bring Holiday Cheer to Senior Cherry Hill Residents Through Holiday Concert for the Cadbury Community

Dec. 9, 2007 2:00pm to 4:00pm, in Cadbury's Lobby

Cherry Hill, New Jersey -- November 28, 2007 -- Classical music is still in style!

Where would you find an audience that appreciates classical style if you're a teen musician, especially if you don't play rock?

A few local teens will be making a difference this season by performing in a holiday concert for the Cadbury Retirement Community to extend some holiday cheer to the center's senior residents. Classical music is still very much in fashion with these teens! Their music will be performed on string instruments, their concert is entirely a volunteer effort, and the public is also invited to attend.

Although they are all teenagers, these young musicians are quite accomplished and regularly perform in orchestras across our region.

Abigail Shetler plays the string bass in the Lenape Regional Orchestra. Ian Hoblitzell is a violinist who performs in several orchestras including the The Philharmonic of Southern New Jersey. Both attend Cherokee High School in Marlton. They will be accompanied by another violinist and a cello player.

Cadbury is a continuing care retirement community located in Cherry Hill.
